September 17, 2003

Council Member Bridgeforth read the following statement for the record:

"Excuse me, Mr. President. Yes. Mr. President, I would like to make a statement, please, and I want this statement to be heard, and I'm more than sure that, and I want it to be heard by the citizens of the West Ward of Newark, and I want this statement to be heard by the entire City of Newark, and I want this statement to be heard by this Municipal Council and for everyone that has clapped and felt that this was a wonderful thing that just took place. I want my statement to clearly be heard and clearly understood. The Mayor has represented that we are facing a major financial deficit in this City that will become increasingly larger from 2004, 2005, 2006. This Council cannot state that the Mayor of the City of Newark did not come to this Council and state this, because he did. I also as an act of mission, one of the things that I try to do is do research on my own. I reached out and talked to economists at Princeton University and economists at Harvard University. They also indicated that the City of Newark is going to face crippling deficits during the Year 2004, 2005, 2006. I sat through a presentation on Saturday where an independent professor of economics at NYU clearly explained that we are facing enormous deficits. This individual was asked to come and make a presentation by those individuals who were against the water optimization. So, surely he had no vested interest in coming there and verifying anything that the Mayor of the City of Newark said, but in his presentation, he also said that the City of Newark is facing enormous deficits. This economist did not agree, I repeat – he did not agree that the water optimization was a viable solution to what he indicated would be a long-term problem. The picture this professor painted of our economic future is indeed cause for grave alarm. It is such a cause for alarm that it is most imperative that the Mayor of this City be open and forthright with the citizens of Newark regarding the fiscal future of the City. While I do believe the City is facing a very, very deep financial crisis, my knowing this and believing this is not totally sufficient. The Mayor must speak to the fiscal problems of Newark. He must speak to the citizens of this City. Until the Mayor speaks to the citizens, I cannot continue to support the water optimization. My support of the water optimization was based on a belief that the Mayor of this City was, in fact, telling the truth. I did the necessary research to determine he is, in fact, telling the truth. However, he is the Mayor of this City. He is the Chief Executive Officer of this City, and it is his responsibility given the graveness of what our fiscal future looks like, it is his responsibility to speak to the citizens of this City. However, if this City is going to face the deficits which will conceivably cripple this City, then it is imperative that the Council must do more than sponsor resolutions to turn down water optimization. This Council must step up and provide some serious leadership to develop some plans for how we will deal with this deficit. This is not a joke. It is not a cause for one side has won over another cause. We have just simply said the plan that the Mayor presented to us is not a viable plan. The Mayor indicated that short of this plan that he has presented, and absent of another one, then he will have no other choice but to lay off police officers in this City and to lay off firemen. There may be those who feel, "Oh that's not necessary." The issue is he told us he would have to do it. My point is if this Council's belief system is that water optimization is not the way to go, then we as a Council must come together and put together a plan because the deficits are real. They are not going away. It is not a political joke. I voted against this plan simply because the Mayor has not spoken. He needs to speak to the people in this City and tell them the truth as he sees it as the Chief Executive Officer. Thank you, sir."

Council Member Walker indicated the Municipal Council must come up with a strategy to rectify these budget problems.

Council Member Amador stated the budget must be trimmed in order to save costs.

There was a lengthy discussion held by the Members of the Municipal Council.
